EDMONDS CASE JURY CHOSEN BY EVENING

Jurors Chosen With Difficulty, Most of Them Challenged

INDICTMENTS MADE

Tom Manning Gets 2 Years for Resisting Officer—Dismiss Murder Case and Others

Jury for the Vernon Edmonds case was practically made up at 3 o'clock this afternoon and trial was expected to begin soon afterwards. Edmonds is charged with shooting and killing Hiram Honeycutt at the home of the latter in Slagtown a few weeks ago.

It was not without difficulty that the jurors were selected. Many of the men called were disqualified because they claimed to have formed and expressed an opinion in the case. The case was called for trial early this morning but had to be postponed until the afternoon session for lack of jurors.

A number of other cases were called this morning but for various reasons were not tried. The case of Jess Hatton, charged with contempt of court, postponed until Friday upon motion of the defendant's counsel to set aside the indictment on the plea that the offense is not an indictable one but one in which the court must make the charges.

Late yesterday afternoon, Tom Manning submitted to a charge of resisting an officer and received a sentence of two years in the penitentiary. A charge of murder, two charges of carrying weapons and one of obstructing an officer in his duty were dismissed.

Tom Bull, tried on charges of gambling, was fined $35. Ike Walker, Jim Marcum, Dempsey Carter and Mack Mace, charged with assault and battery, were tried and each was fined $125. The case of F. A. McDaniel, charged with passing bad checks, was continued.

The grand jury which has been in session all week had reported only three indictments to the court at noon today, according to the clerk. R. Lee Givens was indicted for the killing of Isaac Minchew in the Hawley camp a few weeks ago. The other two indictments have not been made public but they were for less serious charges.

NATIONAL REFORM MEN TO SPEAK SUNDAY ON BIBLE

Two ministers, representing the National Reform Association, will speak in Middlesboro churches Sunday. Dr. E. B. Kenm will address the congregation at the Christian church Sunday morning on the subject, "The Nation's Book." Dr. Renwicke H. Martin will speak at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night.

Dr. Martin, former president of the Geneva College, spoke here last year in interest of the organization. Both speakers are orators and ministers of unusual ability, and the general public would do well to hear them.

The owner was formerly a partner in the City Barber shop and has hundreds of friends here who wish him success in his latest venture.

CONGRESS VOTES PROBE GRAND JURY CHARGES

To Investigate Accusation of Two Congressmen

TAKE UP NOW

Will Not Leave, Investigation to Rules Committee or to Department of Justice

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.—Congressional investigation of criminal charges said to have been developed before the Chicago Grand Jury against two congressmen were ordered today by the house which reversed its decision yesterday to leave investigation with the Department of Justice. Representative Longworth's proposal to refer the subject to the rules committee failed 197 to 158.

FONDE RESIDENTS EAGER FOR ROAD

Man Who Walked Across Mountain to Catch Bus Here Tells Feeling There

Residents of Fonde are even more anxious for a road to Middlesboro than people here, according to R. M. Stout, who was shopping here yesterday. For lack of a road, Mr. Stout walked across the mountains from Fonde to Fork Ridge wrom which point he rode a bus into Middlesboro.

Mr. Stont says that there are 1000 people in his camp alone which belongs to the Clear Fork Mining company. The people there have long been wanting an outlet to Middlesboro so that they can do much of their business here, he says. There are several thousand more people there in other camps which the proposed road would serve.

ANOTHER LOCAL CITIZEN SLATED HEIR TO MILLIONS

An epidemic of newly found heirs is raging. Those who cannot claim hope for at least a million from some unexpected source is a back number. A number of Knoxvillians, over a hundred residents of Virginia and North Carolina and one Middlesboro man are indulging in day dreams of a $1000,000,000 estate in the heart of New York city.

The story goes that Robert Edwards a thrifty realtor of the Eighteenth Century owned 150 acres of land on what is now part of Gotham. He leased 67 acres of this land to certain parties in 1776. Heirs of Robert Edwards are now claiming the title which, theoretically at least, has now reverted to them. At a recent meeting in Norfolk the heirs hired an expert attorney toprush their claims.

Now for the Middlesboro angle of the affair. J. W. Carter claims, in all seriousness ,that he is one of the Ewards' heirs. He says that his mother was an Edwards though he is not certain of the exact relationship He maintains considerable doubt, however that he will ever be able to enjoy the millions.

POLICE ACCEPT GATES' STORY

Direct Efforts Now Toward Conspiracy Angle—Won't Implicate Widow

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 12—Police today announced they accepted the story of William Gates, confessed slayer of Richard Heaton concerning alleged events leading up to the killing. They are now directing efforts toward strengthening the conspiracy angle of the case. Chief of Police Forest Branden indicated Heaton's widow would not be involved in the conspiracy charge.

HUNDRED BABY CHICKS, ALL CHIRPING, ARRIVE BY MAIL

The first shipment of baby chicks to be sent to the local postoffice this year was received by C. P. Bristow today. There were 100 of these tiny chicks, all of them chirping except two which had died during their trip from Ohio.

The owner opened the box in the postoffice lobby and exhibited the embryo poultry stock to the wondering audience. They were almost black, probably barred Plymouth Rocks. The recipient considered considered himself fortunate in getting a 98 per cent live delivery.

CAR POPULATION ON ROUTE A IS TABULATED

N. Buckner Says 6,000,000 Autos to Come This Way

CITIES INTERESTED

Tourists Will Seek Short Scenic Road Through Here—More Funds for Highway Raised

Travel possibilities for Lexington are strikingly illustrated by the car population in the various states tributary to the Dixie Route "A" highway, as indicated in the following tabulation, declared N. Buckner, of Asheville in a letter to the Daily News.

North Dakota	109,244
South Dakota	131,720
Iowa	540,120
Illinois	969,234
Indiana	547,342
Minnesota	442,688
Wisconsin	452,717
Michigan	728,327
Ohio	1,074,000
West Virginia	162,000
Total	5,157,392

cars. Add to these figures a proportion of Pennsylvania's 1,061,000 and New York's 1,214,000, and you have a six million car population as prospects for tourists over this Dixie Route "A" highway through Cincinnati, Lexington and Asheville to the Carolina and Florida resorts.

From the south through Lexington to Cincinnati to the Lake resorts we have the following car population in the various states.

Florida	160,000
Alabama	126,642
Georgia	173,841
South Carolina	129,656
North Carolina	247,308
Total	836,450

cars, to which add Kentucky's 197,151 and you have a grand total from the south 1, 033,601.

Beauty of This Route

Add together the car possibilities of this highway through Lexington from the north and from the south, and Lexington has a car touring population of over seven million cars.

Taking into consideration the shorter distance by several hundred miles offered by this short scenic road of romance and history, and that it is to be so thoroughly signposted as to make it the easiest road to follow in the entire country, and that progressive citizens of several states are now investing their private funds in bringing the gaps in the road between Cincinnati and the Tennessee state line to make a through road possible and passable within the next few weeks, the business interests of Lexington will soon begin to feel the increased business due to increased travel when this great through lane of travel is opened between the north and the south.

Big business interests in Cincinnati, Detroit and Asheville, N. C. have raised and are raising large sums to put into this great project. Their attention was help was challenged by the fact that the business men of every town from the Tennessee line, especially in the counties where the bad roads are located, are raising goodly sums of money for the purpose of improving the bad stretches of road in order to make a through north-south highway for through travel. The towns that have raised cash funds are Middlesboro, Pineville, Barbourville, Wilton, Woodbine, Corbin, London, East Bernstadt, Livingston, Mt. Vernon, Berea, Richmond, Lexington and Paris.

Lexington Cooperation

At a meeting of the Lexington-Dixie committee meeting at the Phoenix hotel gratification was expressed at the action of the Optimists club in unanimously favoring the gasoline dealers that were cooperating with the road committee in collecting the cent a gallon for improvement fund.

The chairman R. B. Hayes, will send the first shipment of money from Lexington in the form of a substantial check to the First State Bank and the Bell County National Bank both of Pineville, to be applied to the bad stretch of road in Knox county.

EDWARD B. M'LEAN APPEARS TODAY BEFORE SENATE OIL COMMITTEE, ANSWERS QUERIES

Only Connection With Lease Through Loan to A. B. Fall

HAD LOST STUBS

Said He Never Had Interest In Oil Companies—Secret Service Agent On Trip With Harding

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.—Edward B McLean, publisher of the Washington Post and central figure in the oil inquiry, appeared before the Senate Oil Committee today and said his only connection with the naval leasing question was brought up through the mix-up over the hundred thousand dollars loaned to Albert Fall. He declared he never had any interest direct or indirect in either Sinclair or Doheny companies and knew nothing about the leasing program except what he had seen in newspapers.

In a prepared statement read to the committee, McLean made no reference to his previous conflicting testimony regarding the loan and when his attention was directed to that subject he said he had no further statement to make. He said under questioning that he searched everywhere for stubs of checks he testified he had given Fall but was unable to find them. "There aren't any and never were?" Senator Walsh asked. "Why yes, there were, Senator, to the best of my recollection as I told you," McLean replied. McLean then said at the conference he had with Fall at Atlantic City last December. Fall asked him if he would say he loaned Fall $100,000 in cash instead of issued checks. "Fall assured me," McLean said, "that the loan had nothing to do with Sinclair and the Teapot Dome."

When asked about his appointment as secret service agent of the Department of Justice, he said the main purpose was to enable him to use the badge to get through police lines in strange cities while traveling with President Harding's party.

MINERS ASK FOR 3 YEAR AGREEMENT

District 27 U. M. W. and Operators In Conference on Wage Scale

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 12—Lonnie Jackson, president of district twenty-three, United Mine Workers, said he did not expect an agreement on the new miners wage contract for three or four days as the result of a joint meeting of the wage scale committee of miners and operators in session here. Jackson indicated the miners were seeking a three-year contract, W. G. Duncan, spokesman for the operators, said the miners offered a three-year contract and declined to disclose the attitude of the operators other than to say many western Kentucky mines were shut down because they could not operate under the present wage scale. Duncan expected the conference to last several days.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.— The part played in Department of Justice affairs by Jesse Smith, friend of Attorney General Daugherty, who killed himself a year ago in Daugherty's apartment here, will be inquired into in detail in the senate Daugherty investigation. Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, is preparing the case for the committee. He announced all telegrams sent to and received by Smith at Columbus, Ohio, after the election of President Harding would be produced.

Stiff Fight Waged Over Child Labor

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.—Innumerable obstacles are being thrown in the path of the proposed child-labor amendment.

Its sponsors are facing a stiff right to preserve it in its original phraseology.

For, in certain quarters, attempts are being made to entangle it with conflicting clauses that will tend to make its operations difficult ,according to Senator Samuel M. Shortridge of California.

The Californian is chairman of the sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary committee, before which the plan is pending.

The amendment was drawn simply to empower congress to prohibit employment of children under a certain age. This, without an amendment, the Supreme Court previously had held congress hadn't the authority to do.

Was Plain, But—

It was a perfectly plain amendment but now it's been amended until it reads like this:

"Section 1. The congress shall have power to prohibit the labor of persons under the age of 18 years and labor.

"Section 2. The power of the several states is unimpaired by this article except that the operation of state laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by Congress."

At present an effort is being made to amend the amendment to the amendment, so as to provide specifically that national laws shall take precedence over state legislation.

It's always been recognized that they do, so this is unnecessary. Is Senator Shortridge's opinion that latest change is proposed solely with a view to complicating and obscuring matters sufficiently to justify action on future laws.

PROBABLE COST OF MAMMOTH CAVE SEEN AS ONLY BAR TO MAKING IT A NATIONAL PARK

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12—Stephen T. Mather, director of the National Park Service ,commends the Mammoth Cave National Park proposal to Congress in the following language:

"One can readily understand how it has been tto retain from the public domain the existing national parks, when we remember the growth of the country, from the first settlement on the Atlantic coast and gradual expansion westward. From the days of earliest colonization the lands east of the Alleghenies and later farther west but still east of the Mississippi, were taken up by grants and then by settlements under those grants or by right of discovery. The great empire west of the Mississippi, containing most of the spectacular scenery, was still to be acquired by the nation. By the time the idea of conservation of such areas for national parks came into the popular mind, there was no unowned land left in the East. Niagara Falls and the Mammoth cave in Kentucky should both have been claimed by the nation as too important, scenically, to have passed into private hands In the case of Niagara it has been only by the closest co-operation between the American and Canadian governments that so much of the present falls as are now the scenic marvel of the east has been saved.

"The Mammoth Cave area in Kentucky is a remote probability as a national park. It is owned privately, administered under a will the terms of the last-named legatee it is to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder. There are only two surviving legatees, both over 90 years of age, so it may be expected that this area known the world over will be disposed of before many more years pass by. Only a purchase, either by appropriation of congress for the specific purpose or privately for donation to the United States will enable the creation of this area as a national park. It is estimated that about $1,000,000 would be necessary for its acquisition. Bills have been introduced in Congress proposing its purchase at this figure, but as Congress apparently hesitates to establish a precedent by the appropriation of federal funds for the purchase of lands for national park purposes, it is doubtful whether it can be persuaded favorably to consider the acquisition of even the Mammoth cave in this means. In my opinion the only prospect is that when this estate is offered for sale at public auction some public-spirited organization or citizen may acquire it and donte it to the United States.

"In the cases that have come to my attention where areas are suggested for national park establishment some have not been on public domain. If on public domain and expert investigation establishes it suitably for national park purposes, it can be reserved and set ashie as such without other expense or formality than an act of Congress. If not, the plans have necessarily had to contemplate either the purchase of the area from national funds; or by actual donation of the lands involved to the government for national park purposes."

JAIL FOR ANYBODY IN OIL SCANDAL? NOT LIKELY. CIVIL SUITS WILL BE OPENED BY U. S. GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.—Is anybody apt to go to prison on account of the oil scandal? Doheny, for instance? Or Sinclair? Nobody in Washington thinks so. Fall? It's just possible "he" may be prosecuted. But not probable. Still less so that he'll do time.

There'll be civil suits. The government will try to get back Elk Hills, Teapot Dome and land the Standard Oil Company of California holds. Denby has lost his job. Daugherty doubtless will lose his. Other jobs may be lost. There'll be a political effect, maybe a third party, maybe a chance for the House of Representatives to elect the next president.

But jail for anybody! Not a bit likely.

The oil investigators have taken most of a week going through the Washington telegrams sent to E. B. McLean, millionaire newspaper man, at Palm Beach last winter. [illegible]

Why so much interest in McLean's telegrams? [illegible]

Well, when the oil inquiry started, ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall, naturally objecting to have it known that he'd borrowed $100,000 from Doheny just before handing him Elk Hills, got McLean to pretend "he'd" made the loan, which had to be accounted for somehow, because Fall had used the money to buy a ranch and questions were being asked.

When the deceit leaked out McLean was afraid it would be made very unpleasant for him on the witness stand before the investigators. So he did his best not to be called. Rifts of messages were sent to him, telling him what the prospects were.

The investigtors reckon that a man who was willing to try to help Fall out, as McLean tried, must know a lot about the whole case. They're trying to learn from his telegrams just what he "did" know. They want to know, too.

Senator Heflin got an idea that two of McLean's telegrams were from President Coolidge. Investigations proved that he was right. The president explained, however, that one of them was about the appointment of a commissioner of the District of Columbia; the other thanked McLean for complimenting a speech he had made. A big splurge has been made because they were from the "President", but they don't appear to have much to do with oil.

Some of the investigators don't get along very well together.

Senators Lenroot and Smoot are accused of trying to hush the inquiry up.

Then somebody started the story that Senator Walsh had been corresponding with Doheny. Walsh promptly read the correspondence. It seems he called Doheny's attention to a letter from a man who wanted to interest some capitalist in Montana oil. Doheny said he "would" be interested if Walsh would go in, too. Walsh said he couldn't; he was a senator and it wouldn't be right—wouldn't look well, anyway.

It all happened before Doheny's and Fall's names were linked.

Doheny says he won't even lose Elk Hills. He declared the inquiry is "all politics." He admits it's been made to look bad for him. But when the matter gets into court, he expresses all confidence that he'll come out all right. He adds that the government did better on his lease than on a lot of others it's made.

A Thought

Only by pride cometh contention: but with the well advised is wisdom.—Prov. 13:10.

The wisest man is generally he who thinks himself the least so.—Boileau.

BELL COUNTY JAIL AGAIN

Periodically the question of Pineville's jail comes up for discussion. So far the matter has not passed beyond the question stage though everyone admits the necessity of a change for the better.

Jailer Howard is doing about all that he is able to do with his equipment. In spite of this Pineville's jail remains an eyesore and exerts a most depressing influence on the community. Persons from all walks of life have expressed their opinions on the subject but the old ramshackle jail stands to give the lie to Pineville's progress in other lines. A Pineville minister who visited the place recently remarked he could not blame the prisoners for wanting to escape, he described conditions as almost deplorable and took to task a county of such wealth as Bell which allows conditions to reach such a stage. The place is unsanitary, overcrowded and a disgrace to the community, in the opinion of this impartial investigator.

The foregoing describes in some degree the physical conditions of Pineville's prison plant. There are other conditions which should be met by the proper authorities. Men, and even boys in their teens, are permitted to congregate beneath the windows of the jail and converse with the women prisoners. Some of the conversations that take place are insults to the sensibilities of the passerby. Women prisoners call to the passerby and men and women find it necessary to cross to the side of the street opposite the jail in order to feel that they will not be insulted. Is it not a deplorable situation when women do not feel at liberty to walk along any part of any street in Pineville?

During the last week the raucous voices of the women prisoners have been softened by the childish prattle of a three-year-old baby. We do not know whose child it is or why the mother or relative is confined there. But we have no hesitancy in saying that something should be done and done immediately to take this child to better surroundings; to give it at this most impressionable stage something other than prison bars for a memory of childhood.—Pineville Sun.

DEATH TOLL OF THE STREETS

Director of Public Safety Butler has another big program confronting him in Philadelphia, that of reducing the number of fatalities, the death toll of the streets. Last year in that city 366 persons were killed by vehicles as against 268 killed in 1922. Eighty-two of the fatalities last year were caused by motorcycles, bicycles, trolley cars and horse-drawn vehicles, the remainder by automobiles, taxicabs and trucks. Last year 10,123 persons, 2,420 of that number being children, were injured on the streets by vehicles, as against a total of non-fatal accidents in the year preceding of 8,345.

The Public Ledger points out that the sinister feature of the summary of accidents is the rising rate of both fatal and non fatal accidents, and that newspaper is not quite in accord with the deduction of the Citizens' Safety committee that the figures do not reflect any increase in the accident hazard, the increase in both the number of deaths and non-fatal injuries supposedly being balanced by the increase in vehicular traffic, "a mathematical deduction," comments the Public Ledger, "which will not console the relatives of the dead nor salve the wounds of the injured."

But the increase in the number of accidents has aroused the safety committee to the need of "more intensive education of both drivers and pedes-

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

WEDNESDAY

Kingdom Builders With God

Read Mt. 6:9-23. Text 6:10. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth.

"It (prayer) is not the surrender of individuality. On the contrary it would seem that true prayer develops at one and the same time a sense of God, of self, and of other men. Coming into the presence of God necessitates a clearer consciousness of men, for men are God's great concern. It gives a new significance to all life."

MEDITATION: The true disciple seeks to live his life in harmony with the life of God. He desires above all else that his own will shall be so under the influence of the will of God that his life and work shall be to further God's will among men. God does not command us but permits us to be co-workers with him. Human personality is vitally enriched when the right choice is made.

PERSONAL QUESTION. Am I as anxious that God should have his way with me as I am that he should control other men?

PRAYER: Almighty God, let me realize the leading of thy spirit this day, that I may do thy will. Let me move in the way of life with all thy children of good will. May the inspiration of thy grace make me strong and confident, in Christ's name. Amen.

...rians in the lesson of safety." This, it is felt, is especially true of children who should be taught the danger of the streets and in line with this thought 50,000 members of the women's organizations of Philadelphia are to be enlisted in a campaign to teach the lesson of safety to them- a lesson that can best be taught by the parents. There is in this connection food for thought on the part of the Parent-Teacher organizations in every village, town and city in the country—the necessity of teaching safety lessons to children especially school children who, released from school rooms after a trying day, are wont to romp recklessly and heedlessly in the streets darting from sidewalks into streets, and darting from behind one auto, perhaps, in front of another. Parents cannot stress the danger too much. It is as the Public Ledger says:

Day in and day out, parents should impress on their children the danger of playing in the roadway, and especially should it be drilled into the youngsters that they must not dart suddenly off the sidewalk into the street. It is really a matter of disciplined thinking which any person, even a child can and should acquire.

HARLAN WATERS GIVE UP BOOZE

The following effusion from the Harlan Plain American makes us more than half suspect the writer must have had more than a smell of the "evidence" of which he tells:

From the lofty peaks and babbling rills of Eastern Harlan to the murky waves of the Ohio, the Cumberland River winds a tortous course. Skirting a mountain here, or dividing a meadow here, its placid waters hold many a secret, and its course is rich in history and story. But nowhere nor at any item has it held a more romantic secret, nor made more envious history than last Saturday night, when it held close to its bosom two bottles of moonshine whisky, only to surrender them to the vigilance of Chief Coe. For 12 hours this liquid joy reposed just beneath the surface of the water, near the Belmont cafe.

How it came there, however, is the real story. Chief Noe had arrested one whose actions indicated a close relationship to Mountain Dew, and when the erstwhile offender of Volstead realized that flight was foolish and capture his destined end, he tossed the evidence over the rail of the bridge. "Tinkle, tinkle," sounded the innocent bottles as they met the frosty bosom of Old Cumberland, and the prey of Chief Noe's ability to note bootleggers from afar no doubt chuckled as he thought the evidence of his alleged crime was swallowed up in the waves. Vain fancy. Foolish thought. All night long the bottles held their place and the first rays of light Sunday morning were reflected in the sparkling glass. The passerby noted the bottles and wondered if they were empty, o gave them no heed at all. The youth looked with longing eyes on the water and wished it would either freeze over for skating or get warm enough to go in swimming. The lovers cast longing glances at the water that would swallow hear a hour and carry them into lover's oblivion and away from the cares of life of human beings. No doubt the little fish (if they were not all frozen to death) swam up to the bottles and wondered what strange bait had been cast before them. About 9 o'clock Chief Noe drove up in his little coupe, parked it near Mack's restaurant, went down the bank at the rear of the Harlan Furniture company and out into the chilling waters to rescue the evidence so essential to conviction, and from the cold bosom of Old Cumberland he plucked the potions that make men forget their debts, love their enemies and speak kindly to their wives.

France and England are beginning to agree that they shouldn't disagree.

"Kid Murph" Is Bryan's Choice For President

DR. ALBERT ALEXANDER MURPHREE

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Mar 12.—"Kid Murph" isn't a very imposing name for a man William Jennings Bryan would like to see president of the United State.

Yet that's what the students at the University of Florida here call their proxy, Dr. Albert Alexander Murphree.

And the proxy gets more kick out of it than the knowledge of the fact that the "Great Commoner" is going to present him for the Democratic nomination at the New York convention.

"I never cross bridges until I come to them," says Dr. Murphree when asked how he felt about being a presidential possibility.

"I'm going about my business of helping educate future America, though, of course, I'm not unappreciative of the high compliment Bryan has paid me."

BARBOURVILLE KIWANIANS TO HELP RURAL SECTION

The Kiwanis Club of Barbourville, Knox county is planning to devote all their time this year to carrying out a program of rural improvement in cooperation with county agent Earl Mayhew. County drives will be staged to put across a big poultry project (which an ex-county judge hopes will quadruple present production), to get every farmer in the county to lime at least one acre and use a legume crop this year, and to start every farmer who has surplus milk and cream in the business of shipping cream. "I think this program is the best thing the Kiwanis Club can do for itself, the town, and the country," said the chairman of the Public Affairs Committee.

Your freedom's quite all right with me.
For Revolution you may holler,
And shriek against all kinds of laws,
But sporting such a dirty collar
Does not, that I see, aid your cause.

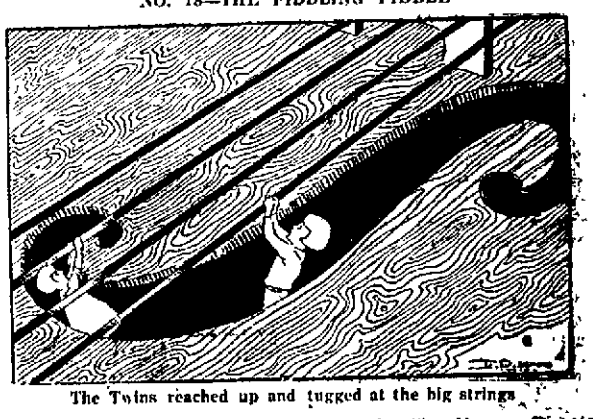
Whatever be your pet obsession,
Free love, free food, free life, free beers;
You'd make a pleasanter impression
If you would wash behind the ears.
Cast off each economic fetter;
Don't be to Capital a slave!
But—that stuff would get over better
If now and then you had a shave.

For cleanliness remains a virtue
Which your opinions cannot jar,
And soap and water will not hurt you
No matter how advanced you are.
And free or slave, this little ditty
Would plant this thought within your heath,
A dirty collar isn't pretty
And finger-nails are better clean!

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 18—THE FIDDLING FIDDLE



The Twins reached up and tugged at the big strings.

"Tuppence apiece!" cried the jolly fiddler at the fair.

"Tuppence apiece, or three for a fipenny bit, to get in and hear the Fiddling Fiddle from Fairyland."

And all the Beanstalk people followed him in wonder, carefully counting out their pennies that they might hear the wonderful fiddle that could play by itself.

"It's like all the other strange things that have happened in Beanstalk Land lately," said an old lady with a wag of her head. "Like the boots that walked alone, and the queer way Johnny Stout's mother's clock acted." And she passed in with all the others, for the ticketman said the fiddle was welcome to his tent.

When the tent was as full of Beanstalk people as it could hold (and the fiddler's pockets as full of money as they could hold), it was time to begin.

Nancy and Nick, away down inside the hollow fiddle, could hear everything that was going on, but they kept well out of sight, you may be sure.

"Fairyland Fiddle, please quickly obey,
And show the good people how well you can play," cried the jolly fiddler, laying the bow on the table and putting the fiddle on his chin.

Instantly the Twins reached up from their hiding place and tugged at the big strings. Such a noise! But in spite of the fact that the tune wasn't anything to boast of, it did seem as though the fiddle was bewitched.

"Marvelous!" said one Beanstalk Lander.

"Amazing!" cried another.

"Most mysterious!" nodded another.

"The only thing," said still another one, "is that it's a most peculiar tune!"

"Oh!" exclaimed the jolly fiddler. "That's because it is Fairyland music and much too fine for us to appreciate!"

And so it went. And soon there wasn't a man in Beanstalk Land as rich as the poor fiddler.

"And now I am rich enough!" thought he, "so I shall turn my steps homeward and take these good fairy children back to the place I found them."

He bade goodby to the good folk and the fair and started down the road, playing a merry tune with his bow.

Pretty soon they met a beggar.

"I have so much and he has so little, I'll divide," said the jolly fiddler. So he gave the beggar all the tuppence pieces in one pocket. Then he went on.

By and by they met a cripple.

"I have so much and he has so little, I'll divide again," said the jolly fiddler. So he gave him all in the other pocket.

Next he met a chimney-sweep. "Poor soul, he looks so poor," said the fiddler. "I'll divide." And he gave him all he had left.

Then he set the Twins gently on the ground and said goodby.

WORSHIP

Singing, singing, singing
The work and care away,
Singing, always singing,
From dawn till dark of day;

A song in the heart at twilight
For the long day's work that's done,
A song on the lips at dawning
For the labor just begun.

Oh, love of man and children,
And love of the daily toil,
Love of the homely farm house,

Of the fertile, yielding soil.
The birds in the meadow carol
A tuneful roundelay,
And I by the kitchen window,
Praise God in song each day.

WHAT'S THE MATTER IN MEXICO? NATIVES PREFER BULLETS TO BALLOTS, WAR TO PEACE, IS ANSWER

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Mar. 12.—Why has Mexico so many revolutions?

At the present moment the Balkans of America are finishing their presidential primary, with bullets cast instead of ballots.

The returns are about all in—the government seems to have been the winner.

But behind it all—this selecting presidents with bullets instead of with ballots—there is a reason.

For the population of Mexico is essentially Indian.

And that reason is—Indians.

Eighty-five per cent of Indian and mixed blood, with the Indian traits predominating.

And the Indian has never with any great degree of success accepted the white man's civilization.

To cross the border of Mexico is to turn back the clock of time 200 years—in some ways.

From modern Pullmans running on a modern railway one looks out upon a land cultivated as it was in centuries past.

Oxen hooked to a forked stick plow the earth.

Water is drawn by hand in buckets from wells in order to irrigate the fields.

Of course the big estates under the management of the foreigner use the most modern agricultural implements.

But the natives do not like modern implements.

Take the case of the Santa Inez ranch near Chalia.

Two carloads of the most modern agricultural implements were installed under the urge of an American salesman. The wages of the workers were doubled. New houses of wood were constructed for them.

A year later the American returned, thinking that with the showing this ranch must have made under progressive management, he would be able to make large sales to the neighboring ranches.

He found the modern implements, broken and rusted, stored in a barn.

The wages were back to normal and the workers were once more living in the brush shacks to which they were accustomed.

They had deliberately wrecked the new implements; the larger wages had caused them to lay off as soon as they had earned the amount to which they were accustomed; and the nice, new modern houses were gratefully received as it saved them the labor of obtaining firewood from the woods.

Extreme, maybe—but typical.

The Indian is by heredity averse to labor. He prefers to hunt and fish.

The accumulation of wealth, the provision against old age; the ambition to rise above his fellows, have no part in his makeup.

With the country at peace under an imitation of civilized government, he must work in order to live.

But in a state of war, with freedom to steal and loot, with his support coming from the country off which he lives, life is an ideal one. He takes his women to war with him, to do his cooking, to do the chores that must be done.

He is again the warrior, with no duty except to fight and to amuse himself.

Hence he is easily led to take the warpath. It means freedom from work—from civilized duties that irk him.

He follows some leader, it doesn't matter whom. If captured, he joins the victor. He is fighting for a principle—just because he loves fighting, because it frees him from the necessity of work.

LAFOLLETTE PLAYS SAFE; DODGES STEAM ROLLER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—Senator La Follette's refusal to permit his name to be entered in the Republican presidential primaries in North Dakota does not mean that he eliminates himself as a presidential candidate.

Rather it means that he declines to be eliminated by any decision that may be reached at the Cleveland convention, reserving full freedom to fight the candidate chosen on that occasion.

La Follette is under no illusions as to the organization control in the G. O. P. The oil scandal may have discredited that control, but it has not weakened the organization's grip on the throttle.

The conservative "old guard" group may run the steam roller to destruction, but it is they who will run it.

And even the doughtiest crusader finds fighting difficult, after he has been steam-rollered.

So La Follette stands aside. He declines to contest for the Republican nomination. For what?

For the very good reason that his position as a possible independent candidate is thereby protected.

Did he allow himself to be entered in the Republican race, he realizes he could make only a gesture of protest before he was licked.

As a defeated aspirant for the Republican nomination, he would go into an independent campaign handicapped. He would be the disgruntled politician, the "sore-head," fighting back out of sheer spleen.

Having declined to enter a game in which he proclaimed the cards were stacked, he is in position, if he chooses to make his play as an independent with a much surer hand.

The outlook, incidentally, for active "independent" organization following the Republican and Democratic conventions is increasing rather than decreasing.

Both old parties have suffered in the public's confidence in the recent disclosures.

Dissatisfaction and unrest are still acute in many sections, particularly the agricultural states of the west and northwest.

The sentiment for a "change" is reflected, even here in Washington, perhaps even more strongly than in 1920. Yet it is a sentiment that would not be satisfied by a change to Democratic control any more than it was satisfied by a change to Republican control.

The demand is for something different.

Champions of La Follette say the situation has developed rapidly in his favor in the past two months. Two factors have contributed largely to this.

First: Henry Ford's definite endorsement of Coolidge for re-election removed him as a figure likely to run away with any third-party organization that might be attempted.

Second: The set-back to the McAdoo candidacy, which, in all probability will keep him off the Democratic ticket, will in that event, throw to La Follette, as an independent, a large railroad labor vote that otherwise would have gone to McAdoo.

SHATTERED NERVES

Lady Says She Was In a Desperate Condition, But "Now In Splendid Health" After Taking Cardui.

Dale, Ind.—"About three years ago," says Mrs. Flora Roberts, of this place, "I had the 'flu', which left me in a desperate condition. I had a bad cough. I went down in weight to little over one hundred pounds. I took different medicines—did everything, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I hurt so badly in the chest at times I would have to go to the door to get my breath.

"I would have the headache and was so weak I felt like I would just have to sink down and stay there.

"My nerves were shattered. I took for something awful to happen—I would tremble and shake at a noise.

"My mother said, 'Do try Cardui', and my husband insisted till I started its use. I used two bottles of Cardui and noted a big improvement in my condition. I kept up the Cardui and weigh 138 pounds. I am now in splendid health—sure am a firm believer in Cardui, for I'm satisfied it did the work."

After a weakening illness a tonic is needed to help regain lost strength. Many thousands of women have found Cardui exactly what they needed for this purpose. It may be just what you need. Try it. All druggists'. NC-156

DIDN'T WASTE MONEY ON FOOD

The recent campaign against wastefulness in eating did not affect me much as I haven't been able to eat anything but toast and tea for the past five years. Even that would create gas and cause me distress. My weight was down to eight-four pounds and my complexion muddy. I had frequent pains in the region of my appendix. I am glad I did not listen to an operation, as Mayr's Wonderful Remedy has made a new woman of me." Coburn's Minstrels Here Last Night Are Pleasing To Audience

Coburn's Minstrels, an avalanche of music and merriment, interspersed with features not usually found in entertainments of this kind, made a big hit here last night. In addition to the comic acts and songs, there was a pleasing proportion of classic or semi-classic songs and the scenic effects were wonderful.

Slim Vernon and Nate Mulroy, comedians, were almost the entire show from a standpoint of original burnt cork humor. The former was one of the best comics ever presented here. His songs, dances, droll speeches and lanky movements drew volleys of laughter.

"The Road to Mandalay" sung by Carl Minch and the chorus of excellent voices, "Out Where the Blue Begins" and "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" were vocal musical selections of a quality rarely found in minstrel performances.

Of course no darky comedy would be complete without the graveyard scene or its equivalent. This affect was brought out in an original manner in the "Valley of the Kings" and the catacombs scene. Skeletons appeared in a very death-like manner, producing the usual effect of terror on the adventurers.

The audience was in an uproar or an ecstasy of appreciation throughout the performance. The crowd was not unusually large, perhaps due to the inclemency of the weather and the show of the preceding night.

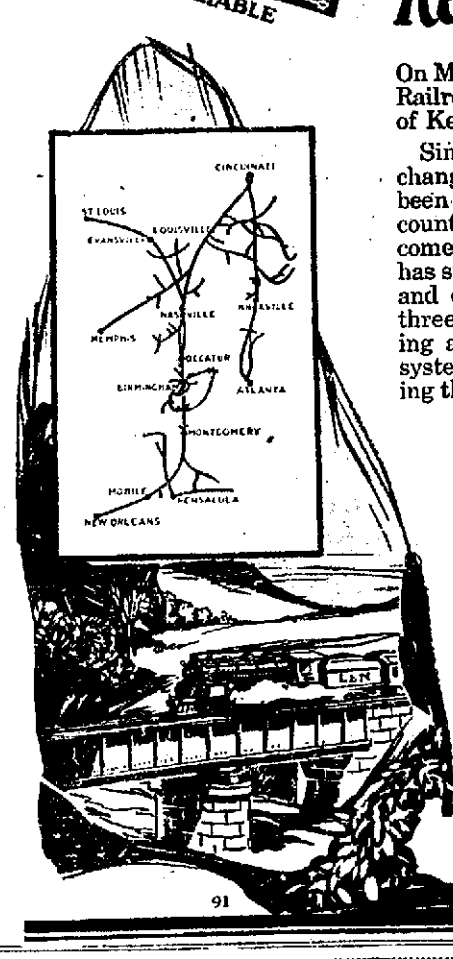
L&N LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE R.R. THE OLD RELIABLE



An Enviable Record of Service

On March 5, 1850, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad received its charter from the State of Kentucky.

Since that date, ideas and customs have changed; panics have come; great wars have been fought; population has increased; the country has developed; and businesses have come and gone; but the "Old Reliable" L. & N. has survived all of the struggles and the ups and downs of railroading for this nearly three-quarters of a century—from pioneering a section of 185 miles to operating a system of 5,039 miles, traversing and serving thirteen states in the heart of the South.

During all of these years, thru good times and bad, the L. & N. has weathered the financial storms; has never changed its corporate name, and is one of the few class-1 railroads in the country that have never been in receivership.

The L. & N. has never failed to meet its obligations to the public; pay every dollar due its workers, its creditors, its bondholders; and, for a majority of these years, has been able to pay its stockholders something for the use of their money.

The management is earnestly striving to make the L. & N. a bigger and better railroad—more efficient and capable of serving you better. Your co-operation to this end is solicited.
